

COORDINATE REMOTE VIEWING TRAINING (CRVT)

CRVT Report: 967

DATE/TIME CONDUCTED: 180806 Nov 82

SOURCE #: 63

FILE #: 14

SITE: Gibraltar (UK)

EVALUATION: #63 exhibiting symptoms of a cold
very good S1 and S2
Good decoding. Also a very good S3.

JDM
18 NOV 82
0806

30° 6' N
5° 21' W m Break

30° 6' N
5° 21' W

A Flowing
B water c

30° 6' N
5° 21' W

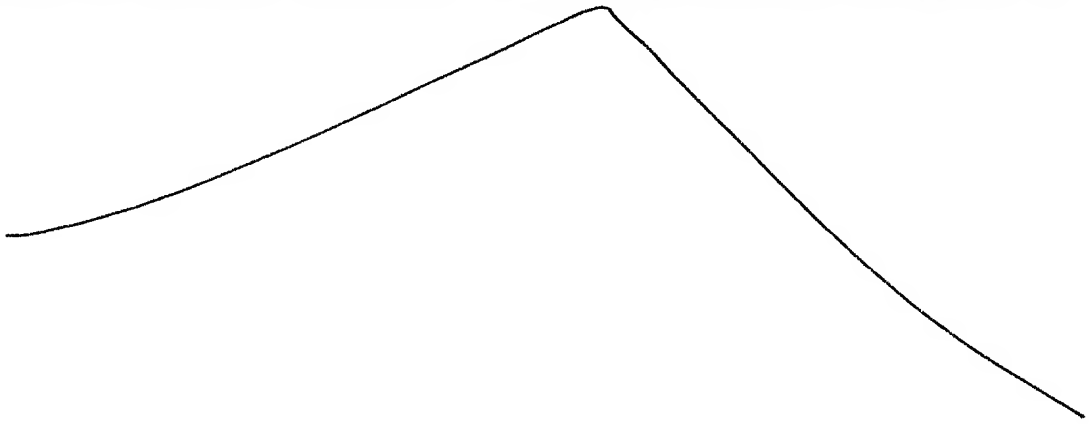

A Rising Solid
B land

S-Z cold pc
gray c
stone c
fish smell pc
windy c FB
Deep Blue c

SUM

L/w interface water deep blue land gray stone
fish smells
probably cold

30° 6' N
5° 21' W

A Rising c/p Falling

B Peak c

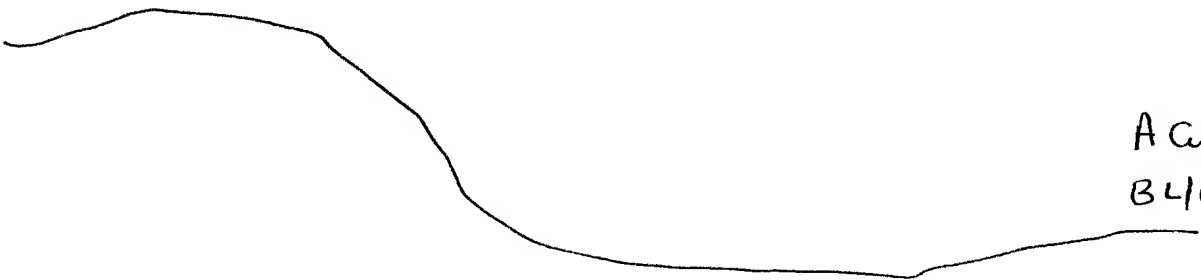

S-2
gray and white c smooth c symmetrical c elland almost

30° 6' N
5° 21' W

A

30° 6' N
5° 21' W

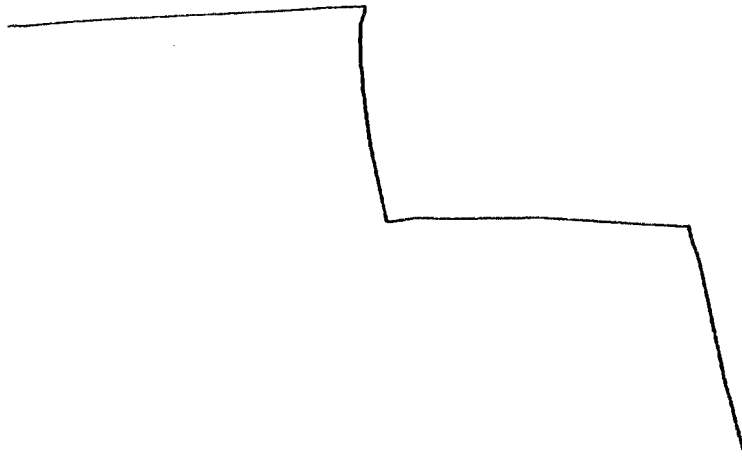

A Rising
B L/w in face

Heat PC
green

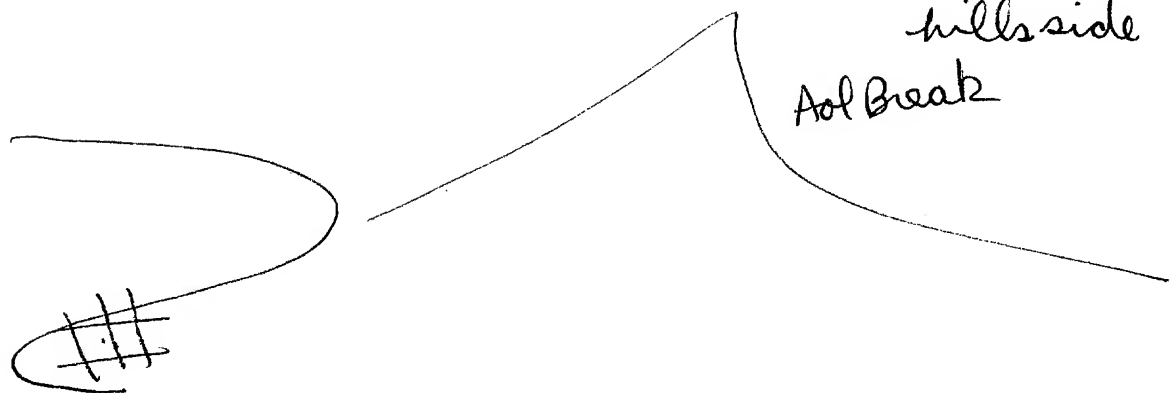

S-I

30° 6' N
5° 21' W

A Angles
B City

S-2
on water
gray/white Blde
clustered hills side

Aol Break

Sum
L/w inface w/ city near water on hillside
city is clustered together
Land gray stone white water is deep blue
fish smells
Probably cold.

Aol Breck
Iceland

AT 30° 6' N
5° 21' W

S-2

small c Village type c
looks out over ocean c
high gray white cold Attracted Fishing village

Ad Break

Normwegian area

2 min Break

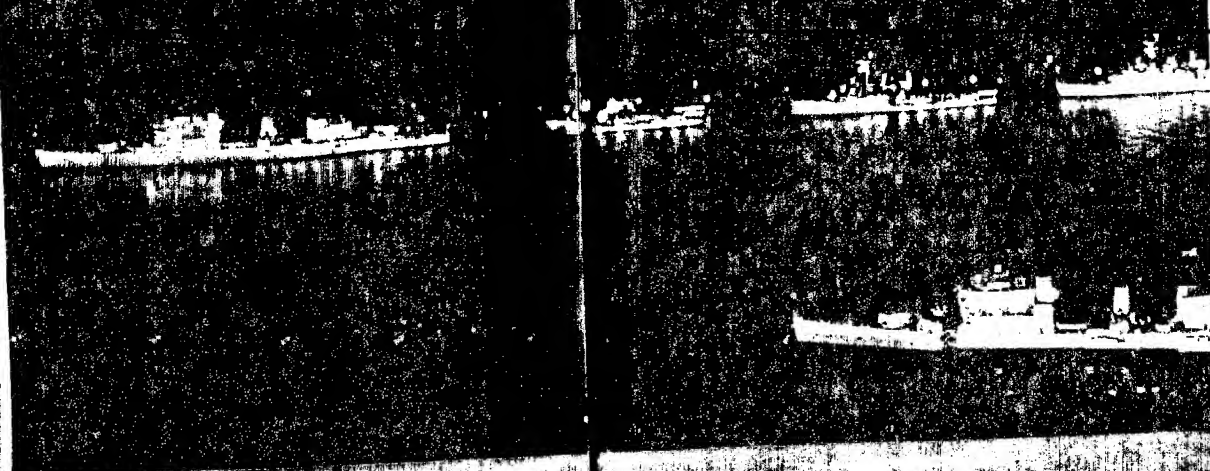

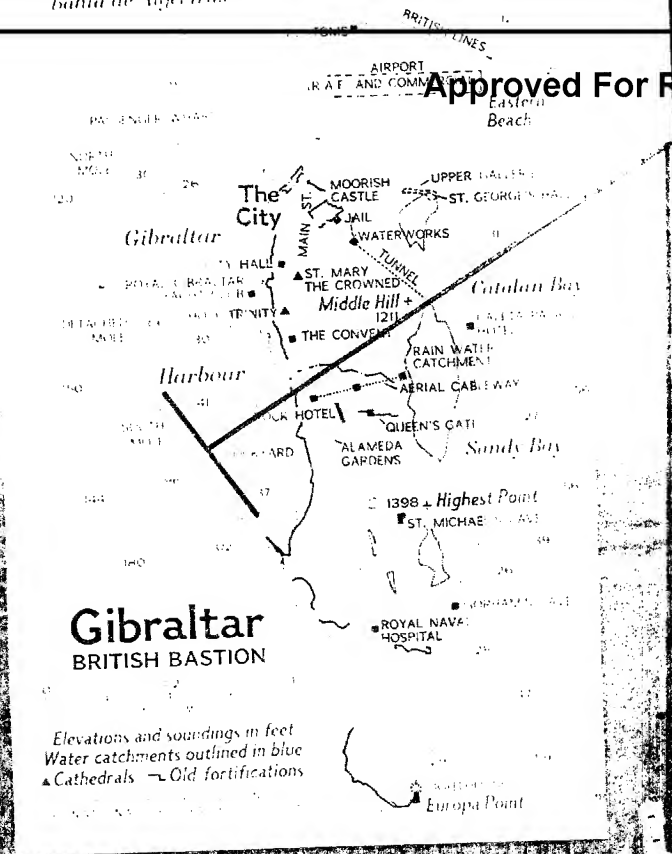

bird ponds
seagulls

30° 6' N
5° 21' W

S-2
small city
large open cold area
isolated oob

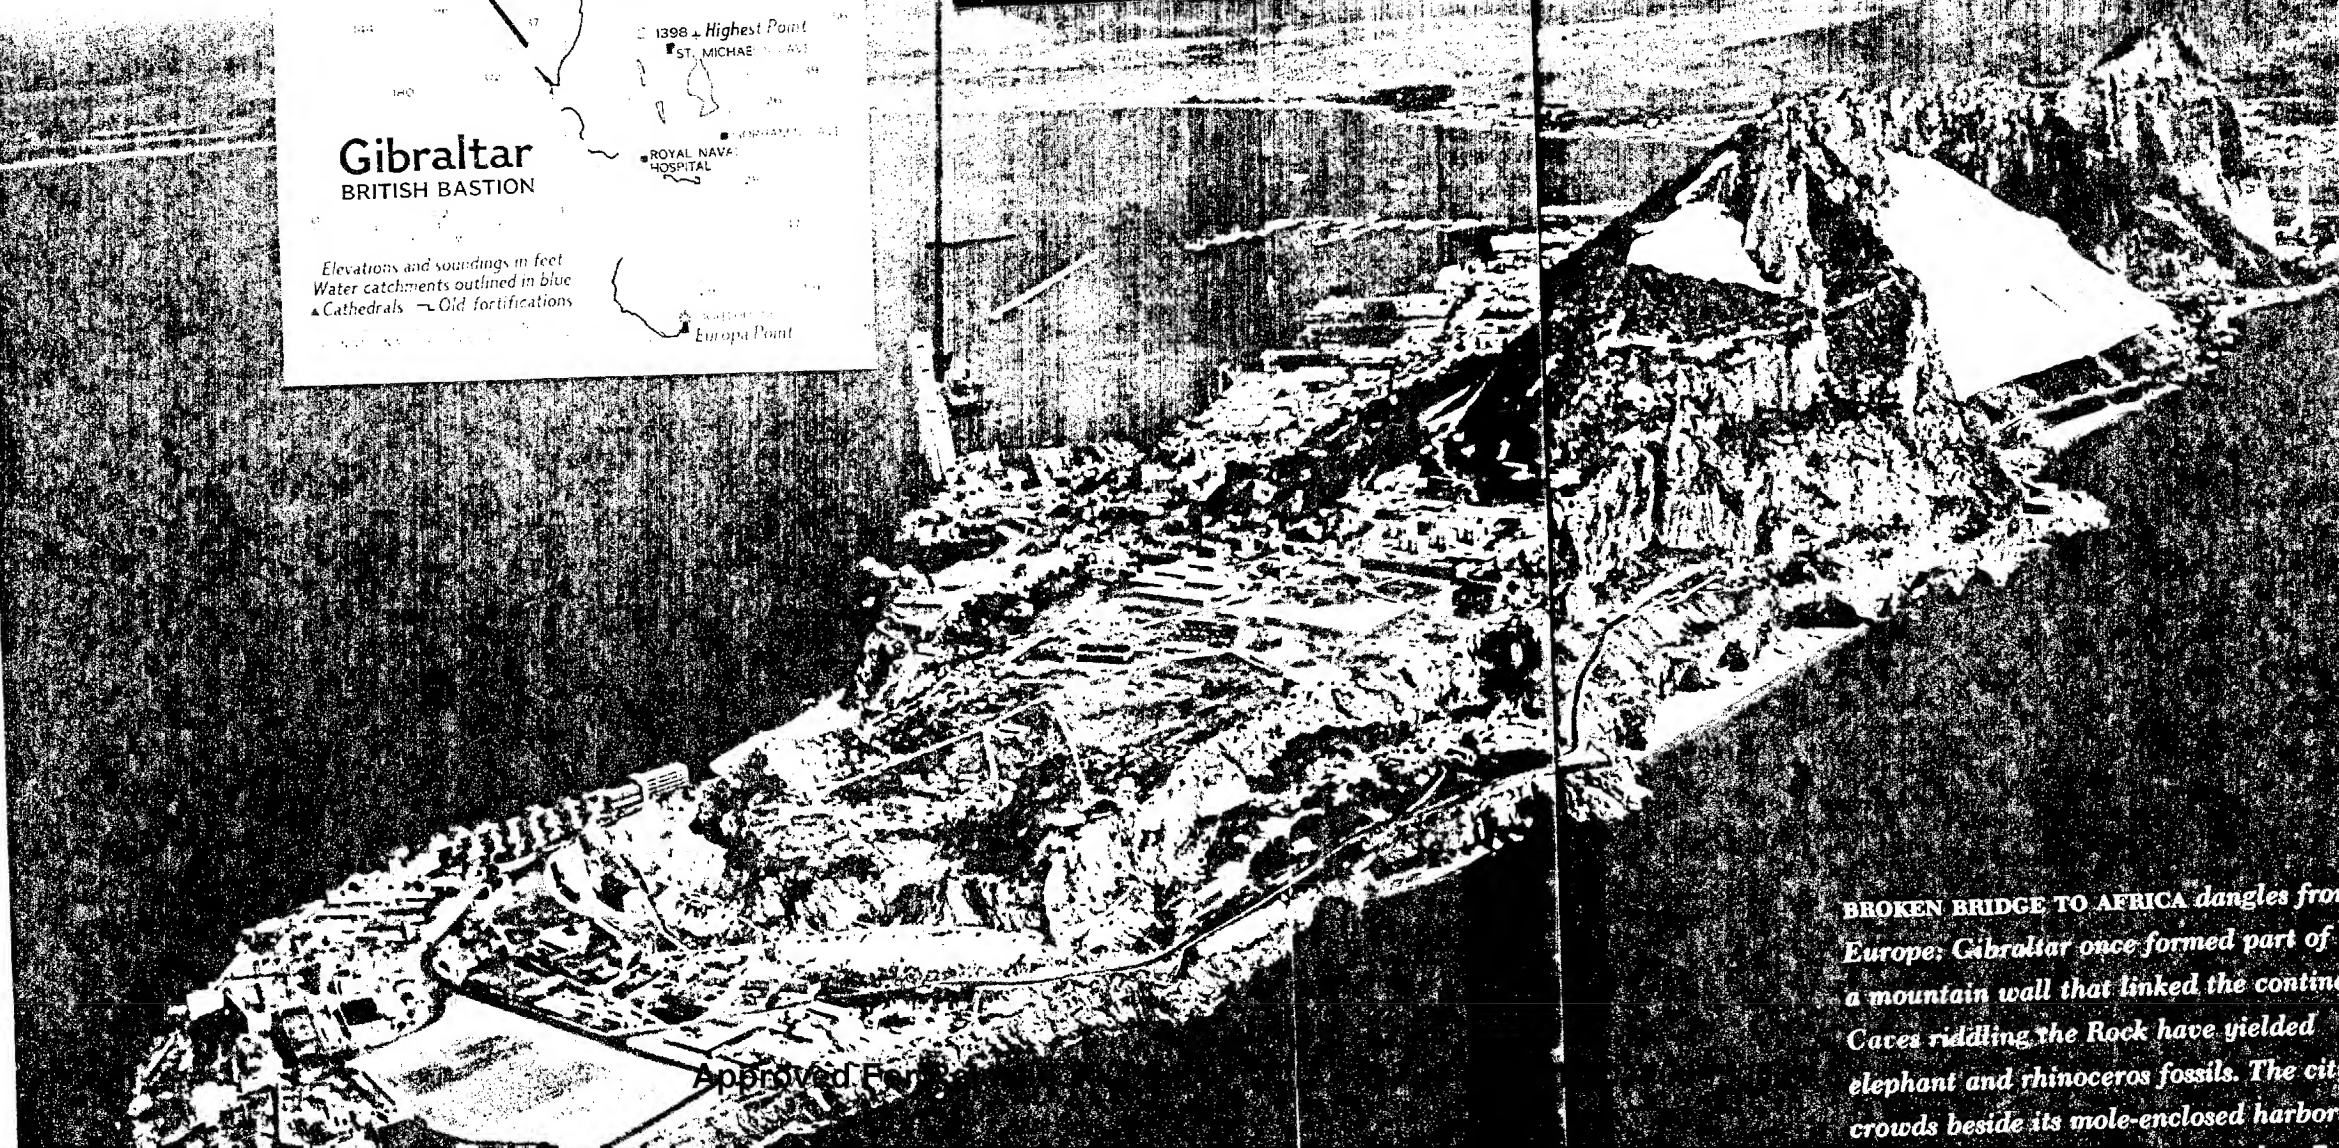

End

Pillars of Hercules, flanking the Strait of Gibraltar, have been a landmark for merchant ships a year past. The distance between the 2,782-foot Jebel Musa and the 1,495-foot Rock of Gibraltar is only 14 miles. Ships of the Royal Navy, at night, blaze their lights at dusk, blazoning views of two continents. The cars to the top of the Rock are staunchly British, though Portuguese, Italian, and Moroccan ancestry. Some 6,000 men, including the military garrison, live on the 264 square miles.

Regarded as impregnable by the Dutch fleet in 1704, the British reduced the fortress to British hands, and it has remained absolutely with all manner of British rule.

Cadiz • A N D A L U S I A S P A I N
Cape Trafalgar
Atlantic Ocean
Strait of Gibraltar
Tangier
MOROCCO

BROKEN BRIDGE TO AFRICA dangles from Europe; Gibraltar once formed part of a mountain wall that linked the continents. Caves riddling the Rock have yielded elephant and rhinoceros fossils. The city crowds beside its mole-enclosed harbor.